COMMUNICATION SUMMER CAMP
July 18 - 22, 2016

If your child has an interest in television — from camera operator to aspiring news anchor — COM Camp 2016 could steer his or her educational and career paths. A full week of hands-on production experience that includes college-level instruction in writing and public speaking from NC State faculty.

REGISTRATION OPENS MARCH 10, 2016

Within a non-competitive, fun setting, COM Camp provides an introduction to broadcasting principles such as news story structure and elements of live and taped production.

Sessions revolve around media production and studio operation to include producing, directing, audio mixing, and camera operation — it’s all about teamwork!

Campers will learn to organize and deliver effective presentations as applied to news anchoring and reporting. Skills that will help them in the classroom, as well.

Dear School Administrator / Teacher;

Please recommend my child (print name), _____________________________________________________________ for NC State University’s 2016 Communication Summer Camp. I understand that there are only 14 slots available across Wake County for rising high school juniors and seniors (as of fall 2016) and that your deadline to submit recommendations is MARCH 1, 2016. Please contact me if my child will NOT be considered for camp at this time.

Thank you,

  Click the red “Register” box on the right. Registration closes when all 14 spaces are filled. You may request that your child be added to our wait list if spaces are full when you apply. If no spaces are available by July 10, you will receive a full refund of your deposit. A $10.00 service charge will be assessed if you cancel registration after July 10. No refunds will be given on or after July 18, 2016.
  See Website for more information.
• You will receive an email from COM Camp administrators by April 15 confirming that your child has been accepted into Camp.

Communication Summer Camp is a fully authorized Pre-College Program of North Carolina State University, administered by the Department of Communication within the College of Humanities & Social Sciences.

I finally know what my future will entail. Thank you so much!

WHAT CAMPERS SAID ABOUT COM CAMP 2015

This camp has made me so happy [and] it is the most fun I’ve had all summer.
